REPORT

designjunction

designjunction 2015 welcomed a record breaking 26,000 visitors through the doors over five days during London Design Festival, presenting more than 180 brands, shops and a host of striking installations. Held across two central London locations, designjunction 2015 was the largest and most challenging edition to date.

This year's lightjunction - dedicated to decorative lighting, took place on the ground floor of The College, former home to Central Saint Martins school of art. The show transformed the old Dean's office and staff quarters by presenting a curated selection of international lighting brands alongside pioneering design-led lighting installations. Have a browse through the decorative lighting products that captured darc's attention at this year's show.

Workshop Made by Hand

The Workshop lamp is a recreation of the type of lamp used for generations in public areas, workshops and private homes. The solid and industrial look in many ways represents urban and minimalistic Scandinavian lifestyle décor.

Volée FontanaArte

Volée, the LED task light by Odo Fioravanti for FontanaArte, switches on with a simple wave of the hand under the head of this lamp, activating an electronic device that switches the light on or off without contact. A touch sensor over the head allows the flow of light to be regulated to three different levels of intensity.

Blum arturo alvarez

Blum expresses a subtle, ethereal and translucent beauty that illustrates the designer's reflection on the many possible interpretations of objects. Made of painted stainless steel thread, the Blum collection is comprised of table, ceiling and floor lamps, using the cloud-like structure in different ways to suit the stance of the lamp.

Balloons Brokis

Designed by Lucie Koldova and Dan Yeffet, Balloons is a collection of simple yet timeless lamps based on a transparent, nearly invisible balloon. With a hovering reflector to serve as an elegant and stately source of light, the natural beauty of the quality handblown glass is underlined by the clean appearance of the transparent balloons.

Cumulus Made In Ratio

Formed by Italian master glassblowers and finished with mirror polished details, the Cumulus is an illuminated flower bud-like sphere. Through a merging of modern technologies with traditional techniques, a digitally simplified representation of nature navigates the surface with a sculptural orbit. As a floating suspension light, a diffused, ambient glow is dispersed.
